Fleming Architects was hired to assess the existing facility conditions of the church and day school and provide recommendations for renovating, demolishing and/or replacing various structures on the campus in order to meet their growing children's ministries, day school, youth and contemporary worship needs. Fleming studied the building systems, functionality and adaptability of the existing campus. Simultaneously, Fleming conducted an interactive program exercise with key leaders within various ministries in the church to plan for future space needs. A quantitative program was developed listing all spaces needed to support future ministries. The program was then used to create a phased Master Plan that will serve the members of Collierville United Methodist Church for generations to come.
